

VILLA BANDITS RAID TOWN IN TEXAS, KILLING 3 U. S. TROOPERS AND 60--- TWO AMERICAN CITIZENS CAPTURED

Detachment of Troop A, 14th Cavalry, at Glen Springs Puts up Sturdy Defense, but Finally Retreats, Carrying Dead and Wounded—Funston Hurries Cavalry to Scene—Oregon-Scott Military Conference Comes to Sudden Halt.

Alpine, Tex., May 7.—Villa bandits, some seventy in number, forded the Rio Grande Friday night and sweeping fifteen miles inland on American soil, raided the little settlement of Glen Springs and attacked a detachment of American cavalry, consisting of nine men, of Troop A, 14th Cavalry.

Three troopers and a little ten-year-old boy were killed, two cavalrymen were wounded and another is missing. He is believed to be a prisoner of the bandits who are now fleeing southward into Coahuila, Mex.

Two American citizens, J. Deemer and a man named Compton, according to reports received here, were carried across the Rio Grande and reports have it that their throats were cut. A posse of fifty citizens of Marathon to night are in pursuit of the Villistas.

El Paso, Tex., May 7.—Three American soldiers and a ten-year-old boy have lost their lives and two American citizens have been kidnapped and carried south of the international boundary to a certain death in another raid of bandits that takes rank with Francisco Villa's attack on Columbus, N. M. Whether the marauders were Villa bandits or Carranza forces is not known.

The bandits foray carrying them through the southern limits of Brewster county in the Big Bend district of Texas, and taking in three little settlements near the border—Glen Springs, Boquillas and Deemers—took place on Friday night and Saturday morning, but news of it did not reach here until today.

Within an hour, preparations had been begun for adequate action. Major General Frederick Funston ordered that four troops of cavalry should proceed to the raided section to reinforce small detachments already on their way to the scene from Presidio, Alpine, and other points.

These troops got under way to-night. It is said here that if the exigencies of the case demand such action, they will cross the border in order to run down and disperse the bandits. The force consists of two troops of the Eighth cavalry from Fort Bliss, El Paso, under Major George T. Langhorne and two troops of the Fourteenth cavalry from Fort Clark, under Col. Frederick W. Sibley, commander of the Fourteenth.

Two detachments are expected to detain tomorrow morning. Major Langhorne's at Alpine and Colonel Sibley's at Marathon. From these points they will march south ninety miles to the border. While military events were developing with such rapidity, the conference over the co-operation of American and Mexican soldiers in Mexico which had been expected to reach a culmination today came to an abrupt halt.

General Scott and Funston met General Obregon and Juan Amador, Mexican sub-secretary of foreign affairs, in the immigration station at the American end of the international bridge shortly after 11 o'clock this morning, for what had been expected to be their final conference. It developed later, however, that practically the only matter discussed was the bandit raid at Glen Springs.

What was said at the meeting was not divulged. Immediately afterward General Obregon and Secretary Amador hurried to Juarez, where they entered General Obregon's private car and began a conference which lasted three hours.

General Obregon, commander of the Mexican forces, General Santos and Andres Garcia, Mexican consul in El Paso, took part in this discussion.

Tonight General Obregon was in telegraphic communication with General Carranza and it was understood he was acquainting the first chief with the new developments and suggesting action that would have to be taken.

Practically all the details of the raid reaching here today came to General Funston from Major O. B. Meyer of the 14th Cavalry, stationed at Marfa. According to Major Meyer, the bandits, about 75 in number, crossed the Rio Grande from the Mexican side late Friday afternoon at a point south of Terlingua, Texas, where there is a guard of about 20 men.

From there they proceeded eastward through the desolate reaches of the Big Bend country over an old wagon road toward Glen Springs, a small ranch settlement.

A few miles west of Glen Springs, an American patrol of eight men from Troop A of the 14th Cavalry under command of Sergeant Smith, was stationed. The bandits began an attack on the little temporary camp in which the eight troopers were quartered before the single section could raise an alarm. The time was about eleven o'clock.

The attackers rushed toward the shack, shouting "Villa Villa" and "Villa Carranza." They were met by a sturdy defense from the half asleep Americans, however, and failed in their evident attempt to make a quick capture of the patrol guard.

From eleven o'clock that night until after two o'clock in the morning, Sergeant Smith fought the Mexicans from the shelter of the patrol house. In that time three of his men, Privates Cohen, Cole, and Rogers, had been killed and he and all the rest were wounded. Then the shack caught fire.

It was impossible to stay longer so Sergeant Smith ordered a retreat. Two of his men were so badly wounded it was necessary to carry them.

Smith and the other men not only succeeded in removing the badly wounded; they took out the bodies of the three dead men and carried them to a place of safety.

There was a motor truck attached to the camp. The dead and dangerously wounded men were loaded in to this and sent north toward Marathon, a station on the Southern Pacific, 53 miles north, in the hope that medical aid might be secured for the wounded.

One man left with the truck. This left Smith and two others to engage the bandits. They retired to the low hills and fought from behind rocks and mounds of gravel.

While this was going on, ranchmen of the vicinity had heard the shooting and had hurried to the scene. Although few in number, they formed an adequate reinforcement. With the badly wounded and dead disposed of, Sergeant Smith and his men joined in the fighting again and about four o'clock, as dawn neared, the Mexicans retreated.

This was five hours after the fighting began. The bandits rode toward the east until they came to Glen Springs. There they looted a general store and killed the ten-year-old son of C. G. Compton. Then they proceeded to El Paso, where they seized supplies and forage and rode on again.

Their next stop was Deemers. Here, according to the reports received in El Paso, they despoiled the general store of John Deemers. Then they crossed back into Mexico taking with them General Obregon and Louis Gay, a man in his employ.

It is believed that Deemers and Gay must have been killed after being taken to the Mexican side of the Rio Grande.

WAR PROFITS REACH LARGE FIGURES

Prosperous American Corporations Pay Dividends before Declaring Dividends.

Chicago, May 5.—The score of well-known American corporations that announced initiation or increase of dividends or extra dividends last week, followed by a number taking similar action the present week, will represent the industrial situation. This is the first time in its earlier stages of the 21 months of work on war orders and the incidental effects of those orders on a large number of industries not on the fighting line. The companies have been slow in announcing these gains.

None of them has spent the money before they got it, but on the contrary, most of them have provided in these dividend declarations for the disbursement of only a moderate portion of the profits they have been realizing. They are sensible of the hazards of the future, and many of them have to make up for a protracted period of poor business before the war began. Nor do the published announcements of these increases tell the whole story. There are thousands of small corporations and firms throughout the country that could make an equally good showing. Thus the aggregate is something very big.

It is gratifying to see that, wherever practicable, most of the companies are paying off debts before going very far in dividend declarations. One company in which many church people are interested is expected to earn an amount equal to its entire debt this year. The process of paying off is now going on but even so, a dividend on its stock will be declared in the near future, in difference to the interests of stockholders who have had to mortgage their shares in past years. On the other hand, many companies are calling for new capital in view of the broad opportunities for their operations. The issue by industrial corporations this year will be far greater than ever before.

VATICAN REFUSES CASTELLANE'S REQUEST

Will Not Annul Count's Marriage with Anna Gould.

Rome, May 5.—The validity of the marriage of Count Boni de Castellane to Anna Gould, now Duchess de Talleyrand, was called in question by the commission of cardinals appointed to consider the claim of the count for annulment of his marriage. Count de Castellane has appealed several times to the Vatican for a ruling that his marriage was invalid. His last appeal, which has now been decided against him, was filed in January of this year.

Anna Gould and the Count Boni de Castellane were married in this city on March 4, 1905, and she obtained her divorce from him from the Tribunal of First Instance of the Seine on November 10, 1905. She also obtained the custody of her three children, on the condition that she could not take them out of France without the consent of their father.

She was married to Prince Helle de Sagan, who later became the Duc de Talleyrand, on July 7, 1908, in London, the civil ceremony being performed in the office of the Registrar in the Strand and the religious one in the French Protestant Church in Soho square.

In addition to the suit brought by the Count de Castellane to have his marriage to Anna Gould declared invalid and to have it annulled, the Duchess de Talleyrand also brought suit for a similar purpose, but later dropped it when convinced of the impossibility of obtaining a favorable decision.

LATEST BANDIT RAID A SURPRISE TO WASHINGTON

Invaders Entered U. S. from Quarter Where Carranza Was Supposed to Be in Control.

Washington, May 7.—Renewed raiding of American territory by Mexican outlaws at Glen Springs and Boquillas, Texas, under circumstances surrounding the Columbus massacre, impressed officials here tonight with the urgent necessity for prompt conclusion of the agreement with the Carranza government to give the United States greater liberty in crushing bandits along the border.

The report of the new violations of United States soil and the killing of five Americans from a quarter most unexpected and in which General Carranza had declared he had complete control against outlaws occasioned great surprise. Important changes in border patrol forces with direct steps necessary to expedite into Mexico in the big bend region of Texas where the Glen Springs and Boquillas raids occurred, with Presidio as a base, were predicted.

Conferees between General Scott and Obregon regarding the Texas raids, it is believed, will only slightly delay conclusions of their protocol. It was understood that General Scott reported today the minor phraseology changes suggested by General Carranza to General Obregon. A reply was sent General Scott by General Bliss, acting chief of staff, which may result in conclusions of the protocol at the next conference.

Secretary Baker, who has been visiting his family at Cleveland, will return here tomorrow and direct steps necessary as a result of the Big Bend incursions. General Funston reported to-night that movement of a considerable force of border troops to the Big Bend district already had been ordered.

The ease with which bandits may raid certain sections of the border, army officers pointed out to-night, was illustrated in the Texas incursions. Conditions at Glen Springs, it is declared, are duplicated at many other points all along the line. It was also pointed out that the raiders entered the United States from Coahuila, the native state of General Carranza himself, and where he has maintained his control has been almost unchallenged.

Army officers here think it possible that Villa himself may have participated in the Big Bend raids although they regard it as hardly probable. Unconfirmed rumors have been received for some time that Villa was proceeding toward Ojinaga, a few miles west of the scene of the recent incursions.

About 2,500 troops are understood to be available along the border, between Brownsville and Columbus, N. M.

New York, May 5.—The second important change in the motion-picture industry to take place within the last two weeks as the result of the unrest brought about by overproduction became known yesterday when the formation of a new Vitagraph company was announced. The other change was a merger between the Triangle and the Lasky and Famous Players groups, negotiations for the consummation of which are still pending. The announcement of the new Vitagraph company was made in the following statement issued by Albert E. Smith, treasurer, and J. Stuart Blackton, secretary of the old company.

We take pleasure in announcing the completion of plans for the formation of a new Vitagraph company, with an authorized capital stock of $25,000,000 preferred and $5,000,000 common. Associated with us in the new company are a number of men of prominence in the financial and business world.

160 DEAD NOT ACCOUNTED FOR Official Figures of Dublin Death List Not Yet Issued.

Dublin, May 7.—No official figures have yet been issued on the deaths of civilians in the recent revolt, but 160 already have been accounted for. The list is still incomplete, because it is known that many of the dead have not been registered in any place open to public inspection. Fifty of the victims were buried in Glasnevin cemetery on Saturday, and 31 others in Mount Jerome cemetery. Certificates of death from gunshot wounds in 150 cases have been issued.

Owing to the shortage of labor, the bodies in many instances were interred without coffins. Pathetic scenes were witnessed hourly at the various burying grounds.
